Interviews with the beneficiaries are an inspiration both for beneficiaries and professionals to think about how popular education promote social empowerment of target group

INTERNET ACCESS

It is necessary to promote free access to the facilities where services operate, thus enlarging as much as possible the audience trying to work on prevention rather than on treatment. You have to base your work on reality opposed to abstract models, sharing issues, trying to fulfill the needs and proposals coming from the youth. Furthermore it is absolutely important to detect some “mediators” among the target group, recognize within the group the most influential figures and use their features in order to create a more immediate contact between workers and youth.

The focus has to be on abolishing differences of gender, age and ethnicity of the youth, working on the integration of the weaker subjects, making them feel valuable by the group avoiding discrimination and exclusion. Prejudices imposed by society must be erased by endorsing the best features of each kid underlining differences and pointing them out as a positive aspect.

It is extremely important that between the educators and the target group there is no distance in terms of participation and cooperation in order to implement the relationships between peers and the collective growth for both individuals and groups

LIVE CONCERTS

Knowledge should not be transmitted according to the top-down model but it has to be shared, diminishing age and role differences between practitioners and adolescents.

BREAKDANCE

EVERYDAY ACTIVITIES

The goal of active citizenship practices has to be the activation of virtuous processes in one's neighborhood through popular education and social mediation.

The main aim has to be the collaboration and cooperation between peers and between them and the practitioners trying to build positive relationships which are not related to economy or consumerism. Social inclusion must develop living and loving your everyday places.

A young man with dark hair, wearing a blue and grey jacket, is smiling and holding a large, ornate silver trophy high in his right hand. The trophy has a wide, flared top and a narrow stem. He is standing in a room with green walls. In the background, there is a desk with two computer monitors, a keyboard, and a mouse. A round analog clock is mounted on the wall behind him, showing a time around 10:10. The overall lighting is somewhat dim, typical of an indoor office or computer lab setting.

“Youth is happy because it has the capacity to see beauty. Anyone who keeps the ability to see beauty never grows old.”
